The 3M Company

is pleased to introduce a new style leader . . . a new performance leader . . . combined in the compact 3M Brand Dry Photo-Copier. This beautifully designed machine utilizes the most modern dry photo-copying process—"dual-spectrum" copying, developed by 3M research. No inks, chemicals or powders are needed . . . yet every copy is a precise reproduction of the original on white, dry, bond-weight paper. The cost? As little as 5 cents for a truly top-quality copy. Would you believe that this deceptively compact typewriter-sized copier could produce perfect copies from originals of all colors: business letters, blueprints, price sheets, illustrations, "spirit" copies, even full-color pages in bound books and magazines?

It does . . . and every copy is sharp, brilliant-white, instantly usable. Remember—the new 3M Dry Photo-Copier is completely dry, completely clean. Anybody can use it anytime, anywhere, with any original. And the cost? Much, much less than you would expect.
